

La giustizia ambientale come sfida per costruire una nuova stagione di diritti nel mondo

Environmental justice as a challenge to build a new season of rights in the World

MAURIZIO GUBBIOTTI

Abstract: Despite the fact that the WTO's official sources claim that the environment may benefit from the acceleration of global exchanges, the many statutes and rules that the WTO intends to cancel in order to allow the liberalization of the agricultural market, are in fact vital for the preservation of the environment, and of national economic systems too. The present food and climate crisis should be tackled by centering production processes on the needs of local communities.

Keywords: Environmental justice, Human rights, Globalisation, NGOs.