Autonomy and Toleration: Values and Limits of a Liberal Dealing with Diversities

Abstract: This short comment on Melidoro's book aims at focusing on the most critical point of the debate about liberal multiculturalism: how to deal with the conflict between liberal majorities and non-liberal minorities, between the rules governing the former and those governing the internal organization of the latter. Both the strenghts of Melidoro's account and some weaknesses of it will be pointed out.

Keywords: Liberalism, Multiculturalism, Individual rights.
