

Sabina Ratti

Sustainability Senior Vice President, Eni

Sabina Ratti, PhD in Molecular Biology, is married, has a son and two grandchildren.

Following her graduation at the Scuola Enrico Mattei (MBA focused on the energy sector), in 1987 she enters Agip, where she deals with environmental impact studies of O&G exploration and production activities. She coordinates the "Environmental Accounting" company working group, from which the first Agip environmental report was born.

From 1995 to 1998 she is responsible for the Technical Staff at the Agip South Italy Operational District, working on HSE, Quality and Relations with Public Administrations. Back to Eni headquarters in Milan, she works as the Exploration and Production Division liaison officer for Health, Safety and Environment activities worldwide.

From 2001 to 2006 she is responsible for the CSR and Sustainable Management Research Program at the Fondazione Eni Enrico Mattei (FEEM). In this role, in 2006 she is Project Manager for the Eni Sustainability Project for which she coordinates a team of FEEM researchers and Eni professionals coming from different functional areas and business units.

She is currently Eni Sustainability Senior Vice President. She is part of the Steering Committee of UN Global Compact LEAD, Vice President of the Global Compact Italian Network Foundation and deputy member of the Leadership Council of UN Sustainable Development Solutions Network.
