

Nicola Jägers

Associate Professor of International Law, Tilburg University

Dr. Nicola Jägers works as Associate Professor of international law at the Law School of Tilburg University in The Netherlands. Over the past ten years Nicola has worked on the transformations that have occurred in international (human rights) law relating to changes in the relationships between states and markets and changes in the regulatory roles and capacities of NGOs and transnational business corporations. In 2002, Nicola published one of the earlier books on the issue of corporate responsibility for human rights violations Corporate Human Rights Obligations: in search of accountability (Intersentia). Ever since the consequences of the two dominant faces of globalization: the expansion of trade beyond borders and the universalising effects of the human rights movement have remained Nicola's core research interest resulting in (participation in) various research projects and multiple publications on the issue. More recently, Nicola has begun to consider the ways in which regulatory approaches might be useful for the enforcement, socialisation and protection of human rights. Nicola is a research fellow at The Hague Institute for the Internationalisation of Law (HiiL), a member of the Dutch Government's Advisory Committee on International Law, member of the Executive Board of the Netherlands Quarterly of Human Rights and a board member of the Dutch School of Human Rights Research.
