

Sabina Ratti
Sustainability Vice President at Eni S.p.A

A Ph.D. in molecular biology, is married and has a son.

Following her graduation at the Scuola Enrico Mattei in Milan, in 1987 she started her career in Agip, carrying on environmental impact assessments of hydrocarbon exploration and production activities. She also was the responsible of the working group on Environmental Accounting and managed the first Agip's Environmental Report.

From 1995-1998 she was responsible of the Technical Staff at the Agip's Ortona Operational District, Abruzzo, working on HSE , Quality, and Relations with Public Administrations.

Back to Eni Milan's headquarter, she worked as the Exploration and Production Division liaison officer for Health, Safety and Environment activities abroad. From 2001 to 2006 she was the responsible of the Corporate Social Responsibility and Sustainable Management Programme at the Fondazione Eni Enrico Mattei (FEEM), Milan.

In this capacity, she has been Project Manager for the Sustainability Project for which she coordinated a team of FEEM researchers and Eni's professionals coming from different business functions and backgrounds.

In 2006 she has been appointed Head of the Sustainability Unity of Eni.